Higher Education Benefits Society

University President Claude Sowle speaks throughout Ohio.

Ohio University President Claude R. Sowle has been spending both time and energy over the past eight months in an all out campaign for higher education in Ohio.

Sowle began his campaign for state universities in August when he toured Ohio to publicly challenge a financing plan that would have raised tuition on four year campuses by 90 per cent. The plan had been proposed by former Chancellor of the Board of Regents John D. Millett.

President Sowle has continued his effort to gain further understanding and support of public higher education in Ohio with visits to Portsmouth in November, Zanesville in December, Lancaster in February, and Belmont County and Chillicothe in March.

In each of these community visits President Sowle and his wife Katie have tried to take the case for higher education to the people. They have talked not only with community leaders, but also with workers in manufacturing and industrial plants, labor representatives, store owners, clerks, and office workers in an attempt to reach the people face to face.

The president's community visits around Southeastern Ohio have been initiated to present not only a case for continued financial support of state universities, but also to outline to the public the benefits received from maintaining the opportunity for quality higher education for those willing to work for it.

Sowle takes the position that publicly supported higher education more than pays for its costs in its benefits to society. He has said, "Well educated men and women are essential to the advancement of a state, and the state receives a full return on its investment."

He believes that the public, if fully informed, is willing to meet the financial needs of public higher education, at least at the present level of approximately half the instructional cost.

The voice on the other end of your telephone is more likely to be a fellow alumnus than Ernestine the telephone lady, but the call can be equally interesting.

February marked the beginning of the third year of Ohio University's Telefund Drives. This addition to the fund raising activities involves alumni volunteers in various cities who contact Ohio University alumni by phone for the purpose of increasing alumni contributions.

Alumni leaders conducting the campaign have plans to reach 21,000 alumni this year. The alumni to be called live in sixteen different locations which have large concentrations of alumni to toll-free or low priced toll

Although Gov. John J. Gilligan has proposed a three per cent increase in state subsidy for the coming year, plus a like increase in tuition rates, Sowle is working for legislative support to raise state support at least to the level proposed by the Ohio Board of Regents, a 6.5 per cent raise in state subsidy.

Sowle is going to the people so that citizens can help convince legislators that a 3 per cent raise in state subsidy is insufficient even to cover inflation and would erode the quality of state supported education.

Sowle says a 6.5 per cent increase in state support is necessary to provide "fair price" education, one that does not limit the four-year college degree to those who are either affluent or willing to go into debt.

Have I Reached the Party To Whom I am Speaking?

The selection of areas also depends greatly on the presence of organized alumni chapters with a history of service to Ohio University, or individuals expressing a high level of interest and willingness to assume leadership.

The cities in which campaigns will be conducted are Athens, Akron, Boston, Canton, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Detroit, New York, Painesville, Washington, D.C. and Youngstown.

Each chapter participating is responsible for selecting a date for their local telefund in March, April or May; arranging for a facility from which to make the large number of calls involved; soliciting an adequate

The Trustee's Academy of Ohio University has again increased its ranks by four new members, who through their gifts express their loyalty to and appreciation of the University.

Don L. Sneary, '52, is a partner in Arthur Anderson Company and is stationed in Frankfurt, Germany. Mr. Sneary started with the firm at the Chicago office in 1952. He was transferred to Houston, Texas, in 1960, and to Frankfurt in 1966, after becoming a partner with the company in 1964. Mrs. Sneary, who has a degree in foreign language from the Sorbonne, Paris, is a naturalized United States citizen. Mr. Sneary, his wife and two children now reside in Houston, Texas.

Edgar J. Zorn, '52, also a partner with Arthur Andersen Company, is stationed in Miami, Florida. While at Ohio University, Mr. Zorn was a member of Delta Sigma Pi, Beta Alpha Psi and Phi Kappa Tau fraternities. Upon graduation, he joined the Andersen Company in Cleveland. In 1957 he was transferred to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he was the managing partner, until he was moved to the Miami office in 1971. He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Ohio and Florida

Society of CPA's. He is married to Elizabeth Diane Davidson, also a '52 graduate of Ohio University. The Zorns have three children and are very active in their Coral Gables community.

Both Mr. Zorn and Mr. Sneary have restricted their gifts to use by the accounting department.

George Belme, '69, an investment advisor with Lundberg and Whaley Insurance Company in Athens has restricted his gift to athletics. Mr. Belme graduated from Ohio University with a degree in business administration. He is a member of the National Association of Accountants and the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. His gift expresses his gratitude to Ohio University. Mr. Belme resides in Athens.

R. Kenneth Kerr, '46, owner and president of Keck Distributing Company, has joined the Trustee's Academy with a gift restricted in equal amounts to the Keck Scholarship Fund and Intercollegiate Athletics. Mr. Kerr is a member of the Ohio Beer Wholesalers Association and is active in Athens civic organizations. He and his wife Nada, along with their two children who are both attending Ohio University, reside in Athens.

number of volunteers; and arranging a preliminary meeting to brief the volunteers on the process involved.

The importance of alumni support to state assisted universities has recently been referred to by President Claude R. Sowle. Dr. Sowle has stated, "All universities regularly seek and benefit from the gifts of their alumni and friends. Today, like other state universities, we acutely need such private support. State funds in the foreseeable future simply will be insufficient to support the expansion and improvement of programs that Ohio University must make to keep pace with the times."

The success of last year's telefund shows up in the ratio of pledges per number of calls completed: 1 pledge was received for every 2.5 calls completed. In one area the ratio was as high as 1 pledge to 1.4 calls completed. Another significant statistic is the number of total dollars pledged—$20,103.50.

Alumni have been highly responsive to this relatively new approach to fund raising, and the project has great potential for increasing both dollar amounts of alumni support and the number of alumni supporting Ohio University. The increase in donors is expected to enhance the University's appeal for corporate and foundation support.

Much of the importance of the telefund drive comes from the additional benefits which accrue from contacting alumni personally, by telephone. Addresses can be corrected, up-coming chapter events announced, alumni leaders can be identified by their willingness to become involved, younger alumni are involved through the volunteer calling, the local community chapter is given publicity, renewed enthusiasm is created in the volunteers, and all alumni benefit from an increased understanding about Ohio University.

If your phone starts ringing one night in the next few months, answer with enthusiasm. It may be Ohio University calling.

Final Budget Adopted

OU Bands To Perform

University Vice President and Treasurer John Milar moderates open budget hearings.

The University Budget Committee, President Sowle, and the Ohio University Board of Trustees, all took final action on the proposed 1973-74 budget plan in March.

The budget plan, which includes total expenditures of $43,127,000 for general operating funds, follows a year of fluctuation and adjustment in the University's spending activities. The proposed budget has probably received more review and discussion than any in the past, primarily due to the tight fiscal situation facing higher education in Ohio for the 1973-75 biennium.

Open hearings on the 1973-74 budget plan were held in Athens on February 7 thru 10. At that time, Senior Administrators and Department Chairmen presented their proposed spending plans to President Sowle and the University Budget Committee.

The hearings were held in the auditorium of Morton Hall and the university community turned out in record numbers. During the four day process, the public was invited to speak out following the presentations with questions or suggestions on the proposed budget plans. The hearings were also broadcast live over WOUB radio so that an even larger segment of the public could follow the fiscal planning of a large university.

Several weeks following the hearings, on March 2, President Sowle met with the committee to finalize the budget presentation to the University Board of Trustees.

The President then presented his recommendation to the University Board of Trustees on March 8, when the plan received final approval.

On March 7, President Sowle appeared before a subcommittee of the Ohio Legislature with other university Presidents to discuss financing for higher education during the 1973-75 biennium as proposed by Governor John J. Gilligan. Sowle and the other Presidents were in agreement that the proposed state support for institutions of higher education, generally based on increases of three percent, is drastically insufficient in meeting the higher costs facing all universities. With general inflationary trends causing increased expenditures in the area of five to six percent, the Presidents considered the three percent increase proposed by the Governor as totally inadequate. The Presidents requested increases from the legislature of about 6.5%.

Offered on the following page is a breakdown of the budget into the major senior administrative components for 1973-74. The breakdown generally describes the operating fund expenditure pattern for the university.

In terms of total reduction, the beginning 1972-73 budget of $46,030,905 drops to $43,127,000 for next year, a decrease of 6.3%.

The 110 Marching Men aren't the only band in Ohio University's repertoire, and this spring two of the seven additional band ensembles will be representing Ohio University in national events.

On Wednesday, May 16, the 44-member wind ensemble, conducted by Dr. Thomas Lee, who also conducts the "110 Marching Men of Ohio," will be performing in Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

They are the first university wind ensemble to perform in the Kennedy Center and will be presenting the world premiere performance of Paul Cooper's "Antiphons," written for Solo Oboe and Wind Ensemble. The work was especially commissioned by Dr. Lee and the Ohio University Bands. Adrian Gnam, Conductor of Ohio University Orchestras and formerly 1st oboe with the Cleveland Orchestra will perform with the Wind Ensemble.

The program features not only the world premiere of "Antiphons" but also Aaron Copeland's "Lincoln Portrait"—a work for Wind Ensemble and Narrator.

The program is sponsored by the Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter and it is hoped that as many alumni as possible will attend.

A reception for alumni of Ohio University will be held following the concert. Members of the ensemble will join President Sowle in greeting alumni.

The School of Music Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of Professor Ernest Bastin, has recently been selected to participate in the 1973 Notre Dame Jazz Festival. The group has been selected as one of eleven participants out of over one hundred entries.

The Notre Dame Festival is the most prestigious of all such festivals. The group will be appearing in the semifinals which take place April 13-15 in South Bend, Indiana.

PHOTOGRAPHY LECTURESHIP INITIATED

Ohio University enjoys the reputation of being the leading pioneer in fine arts education in photography at the university level. Much of this reputation is due to the unstinting efforts of Clarence H. White Jr. who joined the faculty of Ohio University in September 1949.

His teaching contract read: for a one-year appointment as visiting lecturer in photography. Within three months of his arrival in Athens, White had become head of the photography department, a position he maintained until 1968 when he was named acting director of the School of Art. In 1971 and '72 he served as assistant director of the art school.

During his 23 years of teaching at Ohio University, White, who retired in June, 1972, established a scholarly atmosphere conducive to the development of the individual and of his potential as a photographer.

The Clarence H. White Jr. Lecture-ship in Photography has been established to support this fine tradition.

With the annual earnings from the lectureship fund, noted men and women in the field of photography can be brought to the University to lecture and work with the students, and the tradition of excellence and variety in initiating the student to the field of photography can be maintained in the high standard established by Clarence H. White Jr.

One of the motivating forces behind the establishment of the lectureship was Peter Bunnell, MFA '61, who has served as curator of photography at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City and currently holds the first professorship created for the study of photographic history, the David Hunter McAlpin Professorship of the History of Photography and Modern Art at Princeton University.

In the first lecture of the series, Wynn Bullock, whose photography opens the mind as well as the eye to the complexities of nature, visited Athens in February for a three day stay that included not only the presentation of his lecture but also informal meetings and discussion with university students.

Bullock began his career as a concert singer, and it was while giving concerts in Paris in 1929 that he became interested in photography. After leaving Europe he attended the University of West Virginia and then moved to California where he did photographic work for the aircraft industry during World War II and commercial photography in the Monterey Peninsula and Big Sur areas of California.

Much of this work is included in his Family of Man exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art. Other exhibits have been displayed around the world.

Contributions to the Clarence H. White Jr. Lectureship in Photography should be sent to the Office of the Dean, College of Fine Arts, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio 45701.

During a press conference in February, President Sowle commented on the university's open budget process, which is currently being reviewed by several other institutions in the state.

People not familiar with the university's process are often amazed at the openness with which the university examines itself during the budget deliberations. Sowle has admitted that the openness can have some negative effects because it brings out both the good and the bad aspects of Ohio University, but he believes in the value of the process.

The President indicated that if all the university was doing in the budget process was "putting dollars in their proper places" then he would consider the consumption of time and money on the process to be "preposterous." The President explained that the preparations and hearings should be viewed, however, as a means by which the university can openly explain its problems to the public, and that the process serves as an annual audit of the university's activities. President Sowle feels these are evaluative exercises that are greatly needed in higher education today.

Higher Education . . .

Hitting the theme of cost to the student, Sowle repeated his often expressed concern for the student from the middle-income family who does not qualify for most student aid programs.

"If the societal benefits of higher education are not recognized and the state is not willing to provide at least half the cost of a state university education, I fear a degree will become available only for the rich and the poor," said Sowle.

Well over half of Ohio's 10 million citizens have a direct stake in higher education, in the past, present or future according to Sowle. Their interest should surely be in providing university education at a fair price. And, he explained, the public benefits from the university-educated segment which increases technology, improves social services and pays higher taxes.

Literary Symposium Brings National Names

Four nationally known artists will meet at Ohio University April 18, 19, and 20 to discuss the directions of American literature, past, present, and future—Leslie Fiedler, distinguished and controversial critic; Joyce Carol Oates, famed novelist and poet; Robert Bly, nationally acclaimed poet and translator; and Ohio University's noted novelist and story writer, Jack Matthews.

The three-day literary event will include lectures, public readings and receptions, meetings with students and University classes, and will culminate in a symposium moderated by poet and Ohio Review editor Wayne Dodd.

Matthews

Bly

Novelist JACK MATTHEWS was born in Columbus, Ohio, and took both undergraduate and graduate degrees from the Ohio State University. A Professor of English Literature at Ohio University, he has published short stories, poems, and essays in a wide variety of literary magazines. His novels include Hanger Stout, Awake!, Beyond the Bridge, The Tale of Asa Bean, The Charisma Campaigns, and Pictures of the Journey Back.

ROBERT BLY, poet and translator, was born in Minnesota and educated at Harvard and the University of Iowa. He lives in western Minnesota, where he edits the influential magazine, The Seventies, and the Seventies Press. His books of poems include Silence in the Snowy Fields, The Light Around the Body, and Sleepers Joining Hands. Mr. Bly's translations have introduced American readers to the work of such poets Neruda, Vallejo, and Tomas Tranströmer. He won the National Book Award for Poetry in 1968.

JOYCE CAROL OATES, novelist and poet, was born and raised in upstate New York. She graduated from Syracuse University and received her Masters degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1961. She currently teaches at the University of Windsor in Ontario. Her books include: short stories, By the North Gate, Upon the Sweeping Flood, The Wheel of Love, Marriages and Infidelities; novels, With Shuddering Fall, A Garden of Earthly Delights, Expensive People, them, Wonderland; poetry collections, Anonymous Sins, Love and Its Derangements, Angel Fire; critical essays, The Edge of Impossibility; Forms of Tragic Literature. Among her honors, Miss Oates has received first prize in the O. Henry Short Story Awards, a Guggenheim Fellowship, and, in 1970, the National Book Award for Fiction.

LESLIE FIEDLER, one of America's best-known literary and social critics, was born in New York City. Educated at New York University and the University of Wisconsin, he has taught at the University of Montana and presently holds the Samuel L. Clemens Chair of American Literature at the State University of New York at Buffalo. His critical works include No! In Thunder, Love and Death in the American Novel, Waiting for the End, Being Busted, Collected Essays, The Stranger in Shakespeare, and What Was Literature? Mr. Fiedler has also published four works of fiction, and has lectured around the world on American life and letters.

Faculty Deaths . . .

Professor emeritus Henry J. Jeddeloh, 83, died last November 1, at O'Brien Memorial Hospital in Athens.

German-born, professor Jeddeloh came to the United States in 1911 as a skilled cabinet maker with no knowledge of English. He did his undergraduate work at the University of Wisconsin, and his graduate work at Columbia University in New York. He joined the sociology department at Ohio University in 1925 and retired in 1959.

His extensive mineral collection was given to the geology department for display in the library.

Dr. Edwin Bert Smith, 92, professor emeritus of government at Ohio University, where he was a member of the faculty for 28 years, died on December 3, at First Community Village in Columbus.

While at Ohio University he served as a professor of history and political science from 1923 to 1936 and professor of government from 1937 until his retirement in 1951.

Dr. Smith was listed in "Who's Who in America," and was the author of "The Teaching of Civics" and co-author of "Standardization of Subject Matter."

MATH BUILDING NAMED FOR DR. MORTON

Saturday, Feb. 17, was a day of recognition and reminiscence for Dr. Robert L. Morton, Ohio University alumnus and retired faculty member in whose honor the University's new mathematics building has been named.

Family members, former colleagues and students, friends, and official university representatives gathered at 11 a.m. for a ceremony marking the dedication of Robert Lee Morton Hall. Among those present were a granddaughter, Deborah Kadison, Myrtle Beach, S.C., and a grandson, Fredric Webb, East Cleveland.

Following formal opening of the ceremony by the presiding officer, Dr. Taylor Culbert, Ohio University vice president and dean of faculties, a Board of Trustees resolution naming the $3.5 million building for Dr. Morton was read by Trustee Duncan M. Baxter.

President Claude R. Sowle, in his dedicatory statement, cited Dr. Morton as a teacher and author who has brought honor to himself and Ohio University and as a recipient of the university's Distinguished Professor Award and Founders' Citation.

Sowle noted that Dr. Morton shares the Founders' Citation, Ohio University's highest award, "with two former presidents and a distinguished former trustee and benefactor."

Dr. Samuel Goldman, dean of the College of Education, called attention to Dr. Morton's "absolutely astounding number of publications, with over 50 million copies of books sold." These books, Goldman said, are "the standard for excellence against which Dr. Morton's contemporaries measured their own success."

Speaking of Professor Morton the teacher, Goldman stated, "his students are his legacy to a better world. And they stand as guarantors that the Morton excellence will continue."

Looking back on the experience of having been first Dr. Morton's student and later his faculty colleague, Dr. Samuel J. Jasper, Ohio University professor of mathematics, characterized his mentor as "a master teacher" who possesses "unusual ability to really communicate" with students and faculty alike.

Also on the program was Dr. John G. Jewett, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, who spoke of Dr. Morton's contributions as a mathematician and scholar.

The day's activities did not end with adjournment of the formal ceremony—participants were invited to tour Morton Hall, guided by Dr. Robert Helsel, chairman of the Department of Mathematics and members of the mathematics faculty. Classrooms and offices, a library, two small auditoriums, and a larger auditorium seating more than 400 persons are housed in the building.

At a 1 p.m. luncheon at the home of President and Mrs. Sowle, Dr. Morton was presented with two volumes of bound letters, one written by grade school students who have used Dr. Morton's mathematics textbooks and the other sent by former faculty colleagues.

Deborah Kadison accepted a photograph of her grandfather in behalf of her mother, Mrs. Herbert Kadison. Another Morton daughter, Mrs. Jean A. Webb, is deceased. Both Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Kadison graduated from Ohio University.

Luncheon guests also attended the Ohio University-Western Michigan basketball game, where Dr. Morton, his grandson and granddaughter were introduced prior to game time.

Dr. Morton's ties with the University began during his days as an undergraduate student. A 1913 alumnus, he returned to Ohio University to teach in 1918, following graduate work at Columbia University and at Ohio State University, where he earned both M.A. and Ph.D. degrees.

He held positions in the Extension Division and as a professor and department chairman in the Department of Mathematical Methods for 42 years, retiring in 1960.

Since retirement, Dr. Morton has maintained a lively interest in the University and Athens communities. He maintained an office at the College of Education for many years and is presently an active member of the College Bridge Club.

Endowments given to Ohio University by Dr. Morton will provide for the establishment of two permanent academic chairs. Candidates for the new positions are presently being considered by a committee headed by Dr. Don A. Leighty, College of Education faculty member.

Campus life and the student mood are now exemplified by those young adults leaning toward a conservative new era. Athena '73, the Ohio University yearbook, will reflect this new trend by publishing a four hundred page book about the students, their classes and organizations, in the traditional style. By your donation of twelve dollars, you will be recognized as a supporter of Athena '73 and receive a free copy of the publication signifying your assistance in a worthwhile student endeavor.

FORENSICS TEAM HAS SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Over the past few years, the Ohio University Intercollegiate Forensics Program has attained national prominence. Sponsored by the School of Interpersonal Communication and open to all undergraduates, the IFP annually involves over 40 students in intercollegiate competition in debate, persuasion, extemporaneous, original humorous, group discussion, and oral interpretation.

The 1972 season was climaxed last August when the annual national summary, of the over 600 programs nationally, announced that Ohio University finished second in the nation to The University of Southern California, indicating a marked improvement over 1971's 12th place finish and 1968's 62nd place finish. The citation reads:

"Recognition for maintaining an outstanding forensic program that places you in the forefront of American intercollegiate forensics."

The current season which ends in May looks equally good. During the past month OU teams in individual events and debate defeated over 100 universities in East coast tournaments. At the Woodrow Wilson Forensic Tournament at Monmouth College the individual events squad accumulated more points than any school in the history of the tournament. At the awards assembly the Ohio University speakers received a standing ovation when it was noted that in the field of over 400 contestants the 8 OU speakers placed 1st, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, and 19th. At the Marshall Wythe Debate Tournament at the College of William and Mary, OU's two man debate team won 1st in a field of 64 schools. Also, for the 4th consecutive year OU's individual events squad won the State Championship tournament. Ms. Sandra Anderson, Lyndon, Ohio Senior pre-law major, won Championship in persuasion and extemporaneous and will represent the State of Ohio at the 100th annual Interstate Oratorical Association National persuasion contest in May.

The IFP also sponsors four tournaments on the Athens campus each year—The 1804 Debate Tournament, the Interstate Individual Events Tournament, and The Spring Individual Events Tournament—which draw entrants from over 150 colleges and universities. The high school National Forensic League district tournament bringing over 300 high school students to Athens is also hosted each February.

The current Director of Intercollegiate Forensics is Dr. Raymond C. Beaty. Other personnel include Dr. Ted Foster, director of debate and Mr. Steve Stanley, director of individual events.

The record of the 1906-1964 period of forensic activity is incomplete. We are interested in any information any alumni may have about the program during this period (their participation, names of coaches and other participants, tournaments attended, etc.). Please send the information to:

POW Returns

Captain Burton W. Campbell, a '61 Ohio University honor graduate returned to the States after being captive for seven years in a North Vietnam POW camp.

He arrived at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton on February 15, and seems to be in excellent shape, in spite of being 30 pounds lighter than he was at the time of capture, report hospital authorities at USAF Medical Center at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Captain Campbell was born on May 27, 1939 in Amherst, Ohio. After graduation from Ohio University with an AB degree he joined the United States Air Force in February 1962. He went to Southeast Asia in June, 1966 with the 13th Tactical Fighter Squadron at Korat Base in Thailand.

CELEBRATION OF WOMEN HELD AT UNIVERSITY

Women's Week at Ohio University was a conglomerate of art and music, politics and career planning, motherhood and alternate life styles.

One of the major highlights of the five day "Celebration of Women" was New York Congresswoman Bella Abzug who was sponsored in her campus appearance by the Kennedy Lecture Series. She spoke not just to women but to students in general on such topics as the Equal Rights Amendment and student action in politics. "We leave the politics to the politicians and that's crazy," she warned, "politics is for people."

Other speakers included Brigadier General Mildred C. Bailey, WAC director, who spoke on the quality of equal opportunity found in the military and Policewoman Jean Bray who discussed practical methods of self defense for women.

Art shows by and about women ran continuously throughout the week as well as films on the molding of women's attitudes and a variety of smaller discussion groups and consciousness raising sessions which covered everything from feminist history and the problems of the working mother to car repair made easy.

History Contest Held

Each year Ohio University and the Ohio University Fund sponsor an American History Contest which attracts many Ohio high school students to Athens. This March the 26th annual Contest has brought more than 100 contestants to Ohio University.

Students eligible to take the essay examinations were those who on a preliminary objective examination earned the highest score in each of Ohio's 88 counties and the 12 highest scores in the state.

The first prize is $100 and a full tuition scholarship to Ohio University renewable each year of college if the winner maintains a B average. Second prize is $75 and the third is $50, with fourth through tenth place winners receiving $20. Barbara Hutchinson of Euclid High School was first place winner.

Alumni Abroad Contribute

On January 24th, Ohio University President Claude R. Sowle received a letter from Dr. C. R. Rao, a member of an Ohio University alumni group in Selangor, Malaysia, indicating that the University's plea for help was heard by alumni in the farthest corners of the world, as fifteen concerned alumni at the MARA Institute of Technology in Selangor are supporting the drive for funds through contributions collected by them in Malaysia.

Dr. Rao of the alumni group at MIT writes, "We would like you to know that we are concerned about the problems facing Ohio University and want to do what we can to help. We are grateful to Ohio University for what it has done for us and you can count on us for support."

It would have been easy for alumni so far away to ignore the University's plea for assistance. "The contributions of these alumni symbolize a great interest in and support of Ohio University, and serves as a continuing inspiration for all of us," says President Sowle in answer to the efforts of the alumni at MARA Institute of Technology.

GALBREATH HONORED

John W. Galbreath, an Ohio University alumnus and honorary member of the Ohio University Board of Trustees was honored on January 27th by the Turf Publicists' Association with the "Big Sport of Turfdom" award.

More than 100 members attended the honorary luncheon for Galbreath, part of the proceedings of the Annual Thoroughbred Association, which were climaxed by the Eclipse awards dinner at which champions in all racings were cited, including another honor for Galbreath as "Man of the Year" in racing.

Galbreath is also head of Darby Dan Farms in Ohio, new president of Hialeah race track, owner of two Kentucky Derby winners and the Epsom Derby victor.

Spring

Meade Burnett, the 'Cats aggressive, young TRACK AND FIELD coach, can look with pleasure at several of his returnees. Back will be Rich Dowsell, national champion in last year's NCAA javelin competition; Bill Haviland, the defending MAC three-mile champion; and conference steeple chase runner-up Don Polachek, plus an improved high hurdle crew.

Burnett, who has gained the services of Eugene Miller, second in the nation in the decathlon two years ago, says that "Our overall team strength may be spotty, but we show a lot of potential."

COACH KERMIT BLOSSER'S GOLFERS will be back on the links this spring, hoping to regain a lost championship. The golfers finished third last season after winning it all the previous year and will be out to recapture the lost crown.

Six seniors graduated from last year's squad, but five of last year's finishing team, along with two other lettermen and a top freshman, are available.

"Our potential is good if we can put it together at the right time," the veteran coach stated. "Attitude and desire have been great, and most of our team feel that we can regain the conference title."

and PAUL HAGEN

SPORTS ROUND- UP

With the loss of only his number three singles player, Ohio TENNIS coach George Klein feels that the Bobcats will have a strong entry in the MAC net race this year.

Back in the number one slot is sophomore Phil Joffey, 8-4 last season. Joffey will face his primary challenge from Craig Kridel, number two last spring with an 8-9 mark. Marc Wasserman, 11-9, and Mark Singerman, 11-7, are the other probable starters with Pete Kendall, freshman Steve Elkus, and John Russum competing for the two remaining singles spots.

The doubles competition is still up in the air, as it will take a lot of experimentation this spring for the coach to figure out his best combinations.

"We can be a better team than last year," said Klein. "We lost only Jim Carpenter, our number three singles player, so hopefully we should be stronger right down the line."

Winter

COACH JIM SNYDER'S YOUNG CAGERS, a team without a senior on the roster, ended the basketball season with a highly respectable 16-10 mark and came within a couple of baskets of winning a second consecutive Mid-American Conference title.

The inexperienced hoopers ended the year with a 6-5 mark in the MAC, a fourth place finish, but four of the five losses came by four points or less, and two were by a single point.

Other losses came to Ohio State, Wisconsin, Big Eight power Missouri, always-tough Cincinnati, and to eventual Big Ten champion Indiana.

But it wasn't a year of losses; it was a year of gaining valuable experience. Freshman Walter Luckett, All-MAC honorable mention, came back from a knee operation and from adjusting to college basketball to average nearly 20 points a game during the last half of the season. Sophomore George Green blossomed as the leading scorer (14.1) on the team while pulling down seven rebounds a game, earning first team All-League honors.

Junior captain Bill Brown and Dave Ball, All-MAC second team, showed flashes of brilliance while sophomore Scott Love looked excellent coming off the bench.

While the Bobcats will lose no one to graduation, most of the rest of the league will be just as secure, so the only thing that you can be sure of is that it will be another wide-open MAC race next year as Snyder and his crew try for their seventh Mid-Am championship since 1960.

Tscholl

Johnson

Oswald

OHIO'S WRESTLING TEAM under fifth-year mentor Harry Houska devastated the MAC for the second straight year and then went on to the NCAA Tournament in Seattle where they won a ninth-place national ranking.

Brian Oswald (150), Bob Tscholl (158), Barry Reighard (177), Russ Johnson (190), and Russ Ranno (HWT) all won their respective weight classes while Bob Cruzado (118), Gus Malavite (134), and Bruce Hrycyk (167) qualified by finishing in runner-up positions.

The matmen were eighth in the nation last year and 13th ranked in pre-season polls for this year. This season's performance was again impressive as Johnson finished sixth in the nation, Tscholl fifth, and Oswald fourth.

It was a frustrating season for both SWIMMING coach Fletcher Gilders and HOCKEY coach John McComb. The mermen peaked for the Mid-American Conference meet at Eastern Michigan, only to have three key men injured at the last minute. Bruce Woodford developed mononucleosis before the team left. Joel Witkowski injured his knee warming up prior to the second day of competition, and Rick Baker came up with stomach problems as the 'Cats finished fourth behind Kent State, Miami, and Eastern.

It was more of the same for McCombs' iceers. Playing against many established hockey powers, the 'Cats put together a 6-18 card, 1-13 in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

Even this picture had its bright spots, however. Chalking up over 40 stops each time out, senior goalie Brian Teeple had an impressive 85 percent save average. Nick Lasch played outstanding defense, and Ed Mundy completed a clean career sweep, being the top Ohio scorer in each of his four seasons in a Bobcat uniform. Mundy hung up his skates with 91 goals and 79 assists.

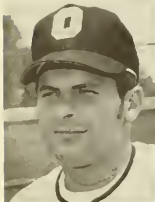

Jerry France New Coach For Bobcat Baseball

Jerry France, O.U.'s new baseball coach, has the job he always wanted but never figured to get this early in life, at the ripe old age of 29. With Coach France come other changes: new double-knit uniforms and an expanded schedule, an all-time high of 46 games, and new opponents such as Stetson, Tennessee Tech, and Eastern Michigan.

About the only thing that won't be new is the great potential of the team with eight seniors and 13 returning lettermen.

But even here there will be some switches. All-MAC leftfielder Bob Bruno, who led the team in hitting last season with a .381 mark, will play third base when the season opens. Bo Kleiber, a .287 hitter, will move from third to second.

Bob Makoski (.306) will return to first base, Steve Swisher (.308) will be back behind the plate, and Dave Sparks (.352) will again handle shortstop. Dave Tobik, Roger Zimmer, and Steve Bihl are pencilled into the outfield slots with Miami-Dade transfer Darryl Thomas, Darryl Allen, and Steve Propkop providing competition at all positions.

France

Pitching carried the team last season, and the mound crew should be back in solid form again this year. From the hill the 'Cats compiled a stellar 1.66 team earned run average—sixth best in the nation. Posting an outstanding 1.12 mark, junior Jim Bierman had the 16th best ERA in the country as a sophomore last season. Bierman, 6-1, will team up with right-hander Terry Wenger, who won six and lost two, with a 1.65 ERA last year, to form the cornerstone for what is expected to be another fine year for Ohio pitching.

Several other hurlers will compete for the final starting spot as well as for relief duties, including junior right-hander Scott Robinson (1-0), sophomore lefties Mike Weiss (1-1) and John Novak (0-0), sophomore righties Dave Tobik (0-0) and Bill Adams, and right-hander Dave Paden, a hard-throwing senior who did not compete last year.

"If anything, I'll probably run more," said France. "I believe in it. There's speed on this team, and I intend to use it."

After four consecutive MAC Championships, the Bobcats were forced to settle for second last year. This season they will be out to regain the flag. "I don't intend to wait for things to happen," says France. "I want to make them happen!"

Spring Practice To Begin

April 2 begins spring practice for the Bobcats. Decimated by injuries the past two years, Ohio University head football coach Bill Hess is faced with a rebuilding job in 1973 and the toughest grid schedule ever undertaken by the school.

Ohio loses six starters off the offensive unit, among which is the entire offensive interior line save one guard, two-year starter Ed Bestvina.

Facing the Bobcats out of conference are Northwestern, South Carolina, and Penn State, plus neighborhood rivals Cincinnati and Marshall.

Twenty-five lettermen return, among them 12 starters, seven on defense and five on offense.

Bill Gary, the rugged tailback who had a great sophomore season when he finished 8th nationally with 1,064 yards and 11 TDs, injured half time his junior year and was lost on his second carry of the season for the duration last fall, is back for one more final gutty try. His teammates think so much of Bill they elected him co-captain along with returning two-year letterman Greg Lieb, defensive roving back.
